

JUDGE HARLAN IS TO RESIGN

Venerable Associate Justice Of The Supreme Court Is Reported Considering The Question.

IS SEVENTY-FOUR YEARS OF AGE

Could Have Resigned In 1903. But Is Not Yet Decided On What Course To Follow—Served In The Civil War In Union Army.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Washington, D. C., Dec. 4.—Up once more has cropped the rumor that John Marshall Harlan, associate justice of the supreme court of the United States, is about to resign from the bench. The report gained circulation again this week on the occasion of the celebration of the thirtieth anniversary of the venerable jurist's assignment to his present place. It is lacking in official confirmation, but it has more of the appearance of truth than its predecessors.
Justice Harlan, white-haired but bright-eyed, erect and vigorous, although his seventy-four years, is non-committal. He shook his head indulgently when asked pointedly if the current stories were true.
"I can only say that I have not yet determined what I shall do," he said.
"I could have retired on full salary on June 1, 1907. Now and then the thought comes to me that I should retire in order that I might do certain work which I cannot well do while on the bench; but when I get close to a determination of the question it occurs to me that my life would be shortened and perhaps become dreary if I should quit the work to which I have become accustomed and in the doing of which I am most happy.
"So, you see, I am undecided in the matter. It may be that my judi-

THE STATE REPORT ON THE CITY WATER

Health Officer Merritt Receives Results of Test of City's Drinking Supply.
City Health Officer Merritt in making his thorough examination of the different causes of typhoid now prevalent in the city, sent several samples of the city's drinking water supply to the Wisconsin State Hygienic laboratory and today received the result of their official tests. The official O. K. is placed upon the eight samples sent the state chemist, H. L. Russell, without a word of criticism. "All samples of the city water show no signs of pollution and regard this water as perfectly wholesome. This should put at rest all talk of sickness coming from the drinking supply."

BRIEF LOCAL NEWS.

Married Folks' Dance: A married folks' party was given last night at the La Prairie Claude Hall, at which about forty-five couples enjoyed themselves until three-thirty this morning. Supper was served at midnight and Knott & Hatch's orchestra furnished the inspiration for the flying feet. J. B. Humphrey of this city and William F. Florine of Bradford were the floor managers. An exceedingly enjoyable time is reported by all who were present.
Burned Up a Hut: City Marshal Appleby and Officer Brown made a tour of the railroad yards this morning and this afternoon visited the gas-house district and burned up a shanty which had become a rendezvous for a number of wild youths.
Sent Up from Beloit: Albert Dom-in was brought here from Beloit today to serve fifteen days in the county jail for drunkenness.

WILL SUE PAPER ON A CHARGE OF LIBEL

Beloit Academy Demands Retraction From Delavan Republican—Other Line City News.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Beloit, Wis., Dec. 4.—Because the Delavan Republican published an alleged libelous account of the Beloit Academy's football game played here Nov. 23, the authorities of the academy have asked for a retraction and unless granted threaten to bring suit. The matter is of particular interest to Janesville in that Russell Zollinger of Janesville acted as official for the academy.
He was accused of partiality but that charge, like all others made in the article in question, are denied in toto by the academy faculty, students and friends. The other charges were that the academy used college players and sought to lay out minto stars by rough play.
If the school can be financed the village of Jackson, Ill., which recently suffered a $50,000 fire loss, will soon install a water system providing fire protection and drinking water. The village board has received two plans for water system from Engineer Moran of Chicago. The one generally favored calls for a gasoline engine power sending water from tubular wells through a pipe system. The cost will be about $17,000 and is to be met by bonds.
Struck by a fellow-workman falling from a shelf, I. Martell, an employe of Fairbanks, Morse company was thrown violently against a wooden box and sustained a serious scalp wound.
Officers of the Beloit Iron Works admit that they are at present unable to place their plant at its profit in order not to close down during the financial stringency. They state that they have just secured an order for which competition was so close that there will not be one cent of profit netted.

BECOME JEALOUS OF RIVAL; SHOTS HIM

Sees Rival Walking With His Former Best Girl and Shoots Him in Shoulder.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 4.—Jealousy over the attention being paid a former sweetheart of his, caused Fred Mills of Houston, to shoot Oswald Jergen and the young man lies in a critical condition at the hospital here with two bullet wounds through the shoulder and lungs while Mills is under arrest awaiting the outcome of the wounds of his victim.
The shooting occurred on the main street of the village while Jergen and Miss Mary Saunders were walking together. Mills made some offensive remarks which caused Jergen to strike him. Mills immediately pulled a revolver from his pocket and fired two shots both of which took effect. The victim of the shooting is 20 years old and well known.
Mrs. Evelyn Hunt, aged 88 years, and a former resident of Barbours, died at the home of her son here after a short illness. The remains will be shipped to Barbours for interment.
Increase Rates
In compliance with the public utility law which was passed by the legislature last July, the La Crosse Telephone company and the Wisconsin company have increased the rates of telephone used by the city, county and charitable institutions, and hereafter they will be obliged to pay the same rates as are paid by others.
The increase, however, does not offect any of the other patrons of the company.

"JACK THE INKMAN" IN LONDON AGAIN

Terror of Tottenham Court Road Is Debating the Gowns of Well-Dressed Women.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
London, Dec. 4.—Well-dressed women are full of alarm at the reappearance of "Jack the Inkman," the miscreant who caused such a sensation in London a year ago by ruining the costumes of women with ink as they passed along the streets. On the former occasion "the Inkman" committed most of his outrages in the Tottenham Court road, now he haunts the neighborhood of Bond street, Oxford street and Regent street. In these busy thoroughfares nearly a dozen outrages have been reported within the past few days, women suddenly discovering that their dresses have been ruined by a shower of ink.
Neither the police nor the victim seem able to catch sight of the mysterious scoundrel, the only clue to his whereabouts being the sudden discovery of some costume splashed and dripping with ink, apparently thrown from a syringe.

FORTUNE HUNTERS SWARM TO AFRICA

Fields Opened at Piel on the Vaal River Thronged With Adventurers Some of Whom Have Struck It Rich.
[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] London, Dec. 4.—According to the newspapers and other articles just received from Cape Town, swarms of fortune hunters are reaching the diamond fields which have been opened to alluvial diggers at Piel, on the Vaal river, not far from the rock diamond mines of Kimberley. A man recently arrived from Canada was lucky enough in the first morning's work to find a stone of $600. In his first week he cleared $1250, and was able to show three diamonds obtained as the result of three days' "washing."

this morning by shipmates.

Lutheran Laymen on Conference.

Columbia, S. C., Dec. 4.—The conference of the Lutheran laymen of the South, for which preparations have been in progress for some time, began in this city today. The chief object of the conference is to promote a closer relationship among the laymen of the church. The needs and opportunities of the church, with especial reference to the educational campaign which it is purposed to wage in the near future, form the principal subject of discussion. The conference opened with delegates in attendance from Georgia, Virginia, West Virginia, North and South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi, Florida and Tennessee.

TWO CANDIDATES FOR JOHN MITCHELL'S PLACE

Thomas Lewis And William Wilson Aspire To Presidency Of United Mine Work- ers Of America.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 4.—The local unions of the United Mine Workers of America will ballot next week to choose a successor to President John Mitchell, who has been the national head of the great organization for the past ten years. The ill health of Mr. Mitchell has forced his retirement from the presidency, a position to which he could undoubtedly have been reelected had he so desired.
There is a general feeling that with a new man at the helm of affairs there will come some radical changes in the policy of the big labor organization. For this reason the election next week is awaited with keen interest in labor and industrial circles.
Two candidates are in the field for presidency. They are Thomas L. Lewis, vice-president of the organization, and William H. Wilson, secretary-treasurer. The indications are that Mr. Wilson is slightly in the lead, though Vice-President Lewis is expected to give him a close race.
Of the two, Mr. Wilson is probably the better known as his position of secretary-treasurer, which he has held for many years, has brought him into close relations with the rank and file of the organization throughout the country. Mr. Wilson comes from Pennsylvania, where he has long been prominent in labor affairs and more recently has taken an active part in politics, as a representative of organized labor. In the years that he has filled the office of secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers he has handled millions of dollars of the funds of the organization. He has given general satisfaction in the performance of his duties and is popular with the members of the organization not only in his own state but in other states as well. Though Mr. Mitchell has declined to interfere in the contest in any way, he is generally believed that he would like to see Mr. Wilson with whom he has always been on terms of intimate friendship, chosen as his successor.
Vice-President Thomas L. Lewis, the opponent of Mr. Wilson for the presidency, is a resident of Ohio. He has been active in the affairs of the mine workers for many years and is probably as well known to the members of the organization as Mr. Wilson. Reports have been circulated that President Mitchell and Vice President Lewis are not on good terms, but these reports are denied at the general headquarters of the organization in this city. While it is true the two did not agree on several important questions that have come up in convention, it is said that the difference did not bring about ill-feeling. Four years ago, when the operators demanded three per cent reduction in wages at the Indianapolis convention, President Mitchell and Vice President Lewis favored the plan, to avoid serious trouble. They found themselves opposed by a number of officials from various states.
Finally the proposition was submitted to a referendum vote, and the national officers were upheld. At a recent conference of officials from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Pennsylvania, held in this city, both Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Lewis were present and there was no indication of ill-feeling.
There is little contest for offices outside of the presidency. Should Mr. Wilson be chosen president it is probable that William D. Ryan of Illinois would be chosen to succeed him as secretary-treasurer of the national organization. Mr. Ryan at present fills a similar position with the Illinois organization. John P. White of Iowa is the only candidate for vice-president.

POSTMASTER GENERAL GEORGE VON L. MEYER

Postmaster General Meyer is attracting universal attention because of his championship of postal extensions. He is striving hard for a perpetual post and for postal savings banks.
Both will become realities if Congress adopt the urgent recommendations of the new secretary. The details of his plan have been worked out carefully and it is believed that Mr.
Meyer will come nearer to tangible results than any of his predecessors who have undertaken the same fruitless crusade. In the case of postal savings banks the postmaster general proposes to prevent competition by incorporated in the law under which the government goes into the banking business, a clause under which but 2 per cent interest will be paid upon savings and a limitation placed upon the amount of deposits that will be accepted under one name, probably $500.
The stock objection to the perpetual post on the part of the retail merchant and small dealer—that the merchant in the big cities would take advantage of the new service and steal their trade—has overcome by a simple plan. Mr. Meyer recommends that a special rate be made on all parcels originating and delivered on all rural routes. This rate, he suggests, should be 5 cents for the first pound and 2 cents for each additional pound up to 11 pounds. This would give the neighborhood center a proper advantage over the distant city.
This situation leads to an interesting inquiry into the question of who George von L. Meyer really is. He comes from one of the oldest Puritan families in New England. He is the best job player in the great community of Massachusetts. He belongs to the Imperial Tennis club that plays every afternoon back of the White house. He is a personal friend of the king of Italy and the emperor of Russia, in both of whose courts he has represented the United States as ambassador. While he was in St.
Petersburg he played bridge overnight with the Grand Duke Vladimir and persuaded the czar of all the Russias to make peace with Japan.
When Mr. Meyer came into the cabinet some of his best friends thought the president had made a mistake in assigning him to the post-office department, which next to the interior department is the biggest business proposition in this country, but they made a mistake. He has repeatedly proven his capacity to execute campaigns. In the case, for example, of postal extensions he has done more than any. He is rich in money, rich in international friendships, rich in talents and rich in possibilities.

VISITED SCENES OF RECENT WAR

MRS. SUSIE LOWELL HIBBARD AT DALNEY AND PORT ARTHUR.

INTERESTING IN DETAIL

Traveled Over Famous Battlefields of Russian-Japanese War—

Graphic Letters.
Through the kindness of Mrs. E. W. Lowell the Gazette is able to give the readers the treat of visiting the battlefields of Dalney and Port Arthur as seen through the eyes of Mrs. Susie Lowell Hibbard. Mrs. and Mr. Hibbard and their two children—Eather, aged five, and Lowell, aged three—are on their way home for a year's visit and will land in San Francisco on the 16th of December and be home in Janesville before Christmas. Mrs. Hibbard and the children will make Janesville their home for a year while Mr. Hibbard will be engaged in lecture work. The two letters written by Mrs. Hibbard follow. They are most interesting and will be appreciated by the readers of the Gazette.

Dalney, Sunday, Sept. 29.—Last Sunday when I wrote you I said I'd give you a good deal to know whether I was going to Dalney or not, and you see by this that I went. We decided Sunday a week ago that Lowell was well enough to be left and so Monday morning I began to turn my belated attention to getting ready. We started at three Monday afternoon and rode all night packed in a day coach, so that we had to take turns sleeping. Reached Kobe at seven and went to Mrs. Holm's for a visit, getting off on the eleven o'clock steamer, the Yawashiro Maru, a fairly good-sized boat of the same line as the one Lido and I first came out on. We were anticipating a fine moonlight night on the inland sea, so went up on deck right after dinner. We were no more than well settled when we noticed a difference in the motion of the boat, the engine reversed and we heard a crash. We both rushed to the side of the boat in time to see a huge sailboat come crawling alongside of ours, and to hear hoarse cries of help. The current was swift and soon the green light of the boat was gone out a ways down stream. In a jiffy the lifeboat was lowered, and sailors went out to the boat. Three small boats from the city with policemen, etc., came out and we had for about three hours what I call a "cat and mouse" game. We finally got tired out watching and went to bed at eleven, leaving the big boat still trying to get the little one in tow and take it to Utsun. We fought in the morning that they had to give it up and we had left the disabled boat behind. We found the inland sea all it is reputed to be, with its beautiful islands and green water. The next day (Wednesday) we landed at Utsun, the great soldiers' headquarters during the war. As there were horses and soldiers to be loaded on there we took a side trip to the island of Miyajima, by sampan, steamer, ferry, train, walking and kuruma! The island is one of great natural beauty in itself and the temple (built over the water so that at high tide we were walking on floors over the ocean) is most beautiful. It is here where the famous torii built out into the ocean is. I think I sent you a postal picture of it, and I have more to show you when we get home. That day was a beautiful, calm, sunny one, and the next morning found us in Moji. We had rather an uneventful wait there until two in the afternoon when we set out straight across the Sea of Japan for Dalney. We saw the coast, hills and all the villages and how the China coast off the Shantung peninsula, and Chinese junks. That's all I saw until the boat dropped anchor in Dalney harbor, for nothing less than sea sickness enveloped in gloom the whole boat. It got awfully rough and even Lido succumbed, but we kept thinking it wouldn't be but a few hours before we landed so didn't get "wholly" discouraged. Once the boat stopped I got up courage to dress and go up on deck and there was a sight for sea-sick eyes. A perfectly beautiful harbor landlocked on three sides and soft green hills for a background against the sky. An atmosphere and a sunshine that made one glad to be alive, so exhilarating it was. We didn't get into port for nearly two hours as the quarantine officers held us up with a bit of real talk about the boat which had come in just ahead of us and had some contagious disease on board. I felt relieved when we found our boat was all right and could go on. The wharf at Dalney is like all the rest of Dalney I have seen—planned on a big scale, room for some fifteen big ocean boats to tie up along the pier, an ice-float harbor, it ought to be the making of Dalney. It didn't take but one glance to see that I had been dropped down into a sort of Orientalized-outward (as to houses) streets, with a crowd of miscellaneous folk around the pier was my first impression, but I was soon slapped on the face as it were by other impressions. Russian drovies driven by Chinese coolies and Japanese Jirikisha pulled by Chinese coolies are only one of the queer things here. Such shouting and noise when all the coolies wanted us to go in their drovies or their Jirikisha. I didn't know but the Chinese were going to embrace me the way they came up with smiles and outstretched arms as we started up the wharf. We finally got a drovick for 50 sen to bring us here to Mrs. Wm. Wheeler's where we are staying and piled in to be yelled and tumbled up the street behind two little skinny horses and a noisy driver. I can't describe Dalney to you; it's indescribable. It is marvellous half dead and gone to decay. Great masses of houses unoccupied and lone some, or else occupied by some Japanese official who is used to living in a "little Japanese house and doesn't fit. Dirty Chinese coolies yelling always don't affect me nearly as much as the tragedies of unfulfilled plans. All the Russian town is simply magnificent, but of course now turned over to Japanese officials, etc. We walked out past the great Russian theatre today, a building costing 300,000 yens and now practically useless. Green houses show where some Russian money was being, and at the foot of one of the mountains in ice even rows the Russian barracks and chapel show traces of Russia. As we walked along we would enter some vacant place, one great red brick building, I remember, and try to guess what it was built for. Right across from this on a slight rise were some two hundred good broad gauge American cars made in Pennsylvania and to be used to haul American flour and sheathing. I am told, over the new South Manchurian railroad. The climate is superbly dry and sunny and everyone says there is bound to be a big future for Dalney. It certainly looks much more inviting than I almost feel afraid to leave our snug Tokyo home for it. But it has been proved vastly in the three months since Lido was over and will be quite changed by the time we come back in 1909. I think papa would have enjoyed a place like this had he started younger. I don't believe you would like it.

The Wm. family with whom we are staying are Presbyterian missionaries here. They have a very nice, new red brick church and parsonage next door, a little white cottage which looks very homelike. One peculiarity of all these houses is the Russian stoves which are fires of brick built out into the room and warming radiators. They also have double windows in all the houses to keep out the severe cold. Thereby hangs a tale. Just as I began this letter Lido was reading on the other side of the table and Morio Wm. nearby when we heard a noise like firing. Morio went into our room to investigate and saw a man just walking away from our window. Then he looked further, after shutting up our double windows tightly, and found that his pet Chinese hawk had been stolen from the hall. He says the great trick of the Chinese is to look things (no slung, literally black things) from the room by a long pole.

Steamship Takasago Maru, Chemulpo Harbor, Korea, Oct. 31.—I am going to improve the overpowering silence of things tonight to begin a chronicle to you of all we have been doing these past few days. First I want you to see where I am. The boat which left Dalney and Lido yesterday at twelve reached this harbor today about four and waits over here until tomorrow about one. So we are anchored in quiet waters and the big engines have stopped their throbbing—all the ship's officers have gone ashore and I am left to my own devices. I have just been up on deck and there I saw the lights of the city all massed together and reflected on the water, saw two Japanese warships with smoking funnels and twinkling lights, two British vessels, a light house, and other outlined mountains in the distance. I came down to the dining room for a talk with you. I am the curiosity of this boat, the only cabin passenger and a foreign woman at that, but I have been treated with the utmost consideration and respect. The officers from the captain down have done all they can to help pass the time away and give information. I am surprised to find they all have a fair knowledge of English which they can use if they have to. They are using it mostly at table and to help me. I know that they say it is not to get practice and have no correct their English pronunciation. The purser has promised to be my guide if I wish to go ashore tomorrow morning to see a bit of Korean life as it is shown there, and if the weather is good, I think I shall go.

I can hardly remember where I left off in my last letter to you but if I am not mistaken, I had taken you up to Sunday night of my stay in Dalney. Monday morning I went shopping with Mrs. Wm. and was glad to find that almost all the staples of food obtainable in Japan were to be bought in Dalney and very good fruit which is brought over from Chefoo. There are some good Chinese stores. We visited the embryo Y. M. C. A. there, too; which is now only a school. It is in an old-time heavily built Russian building heated with the peculiar Russian stoves. We have to send a picture of it which you will see later. We took some Chinese sawyers working near the building, the new building lot of the Y. M. C. A., a long string of American night cars, etc. When you have seen these it will help you to see Dalney better than description could.

Wednesday we learned that my boat started today early so we had to leave over to Port Arthur and back again to get the boat Thursday noon. So we made a flying but most interesting trip, starting at ten Wednesday. The railroad ran through most interesting country, with Chinese farms whose farmyards were ornamented with high baskets (10 ft. or so) of golden ears of corn all piled up for winter. As we neared Port Arthur we were pointed out the Chinese house where Negi met Stessel and received his capitulation. Then soon we began to see the hills around the city, all scarred with great holes with mounds of earth piled up about them—holes made by shells fired during the war. One hill was like small-pox pits, no scarred was it. There was a lieutenant on the train who pointed out various places of interest as we went along; here two big guns on top of a hill once fortified, there Golden Hill fort still intact and most interesting of all, the famous deep trenches which the Japanese had dug as protections by which to get up to forts. Every hill was a network of these and when you consider how they were dug in a rain of shot and shrapnel from the Russians in the forts above you know how much they must have cost in lives.

We arrived at the station and were met by the Port Arthur Y. M. C. A. force and put in a drovick with another of those yelling Chinese drovies and taken to the Port Arthur hotel. We found this a very good looking place. It was at one time the devious of the Russian officers and we felt their ghosts everywhere from the gaudy, tawdry lamps and the steaming Russian samovars to the plush chairs, stately and awful blue wash bowl in our bedroom. We were the only guests in all that great dining-room which was set for fifty at least, and the place was quiet as the grave. Well, we didn't have time to let this quietness sink in much as we had all of Port Arthur to do from then until nighttime. We got another carriage and armed with a map of the forts went out to see the sights. We took one of those winding roads up to the Kihwan forts and in so doing realized what a piece of work just one road was. We saw in the War Museum pictures worn down to the stump digging just such roads through solid rock, for the most part, I don't know as I can ever describe that fort but luckily I have a photograph of it given me by one of the officers here on ship and with that I can explain better. There was this great cement fort with windows, roof, and on one side two stories high. We could see just where the Japanese had crept up through the trenches and put dynamite under one corner of the fort and its broken sides testify that it did its business. Then the Japanese rushed in along those dark underground corridors pursuing the Russians. They came to an opening around the corner and the captain and two officers who were behind their soldiers thought all their men had been killed in the big ditch by the guns on the top, so he was going to jump and die too. His officers protested but finally they would die with him, so they jumped out into the ditch only to find that their plucky men were already on their way up the hill and he led them on. I can believe it happened now I have seen the place. We went around to what we concluded must have been the Japanese apartments, where the women and children, some pieces of uniform, and human bones. We picked up some wires which had been used inside the trenches and hung to the barbed wire fence around the fort so that they would ring and betray the evening's presence. That and more which Lido and I will try to tell you when we get home. More riding took us to another dismantled fort, more bones and a grove. A corner of the hill we turned was rugged with half worn out sandbags, and down in the soft soil of the valley below us were hundreds of holes from which the bodies of the soldiers were taken for permanent burial. After I saw all this, I have felt that Japan will have to spend so much money in Manchuria that the game would not be worth the candle, but when I began to realize just a little of how much it cost her to get it, I began to say "keep it."

We got home about 5:15 without having visited 203 Motor Hill for want of time, but Lido says there is nothing there now but the hill, so I think we chose the best. Before dinner we went out to see the Y. M. C. A. building in the former Greek church and in so far as we could buy some Russian hot water heaters. We bought two for friends in Tokyo and am bringing the monsters home with me. I also found a Russian candlestick of brass which I am going to use as a souvenir.

On our way to the station the next morning we saw the Red Cross hospital with one whole side of one room blown up by a cannon, and saw, too, the magnificent foundation of the Russian cathedral. They had built only the foundation at a cost of something like $150,000. Magnificently situated on the top of a hill overlooking the harbor, I think it's a shame it could not have been finished. All New Port Arthur is built on that same scale of magnificence.

MANY CALLS FOR HELP COME TO ASSOCIATED CHARITIES

Members Are Kept Busy Investigating Reports and Giving Assistance Where It Is Deserved.

These are busy days for the members of the Associated Charities organization and there is a steady demand for the clothing and other supplies which it has at its disposal. Cases where little children have been unable to attend school because of the lack of warm wearing apparel have recently come to the notice of President Reinhold and the committee of ladies. Two of the younger members traveled many miles yesterday to make inquiries into a vague report of dire need in one quarter of the outlying districts.

SECOND WINTER DANCE OF MINNEAPOLIS GOLF CLUB

At Central Hall Last Evening Was Attended by About Twenty-five Couples—Next One New Year's Night.

About twenty-five couples attended the second of the series of dances which are being given under Minneapoli Golf Club auspices this winter, at Central hall last evening. The inspiration was provided by the Roy Carter orchestra and the festivities closed at midnight. Miss Marie Voth of Oak Park, Ill., was the only out of town guest. A full dress ball at Assembly hall on New Year's night will be the next event in the series.

ROCKFORD AND BELOIT WAR VETERANS COMING

This is not unlikely to include a provision increasing the limit of retirement of bank notes from $3,000,000 to $15,000,000 a month. It may also provide for the issue of an emergency circulation either heavily taxed, or also a compulsory retirement within a certain number of months provided for, so that the notes would not remain out any longer than they were absolutely needed to avert disaster. If these two things could be done the coming session of congress would at least have justified its existence. Much more than this will be proposed. Much less than this is not unlikely, but this at least is possible.

The passage of two such laws as these would go far toward reconciling business interests to other legislation which is proposed providing for a larger degree of federal control over business as, for instance, national incorporation or license of interstate companies.

While the tariff will undoubtedly be debated for political effect, it is not at all likely that anything important will be done in regard to the matter until, after the presidential election.

Telegraphic reports show that members of the English nobility attended the prize fight in London night before last. It is probable that Janesville nobility will attend the coming fight held under the auspices of a local fraternal organization.

The fat stock show in Chicago is attracting world wide interest and there is no question but America is showing the rest of the world it can grow something besides wheat and corn.

If everyone would consider every one else when it comes to doing business the world would be filled with Utopians. But they don't.

There is still hopes for Taft. The Russians have given him a royal reception.

CONGRESS IN SESSION

With the opening of the Sixtyeth Congress at Washington the eyes of the entire country are riveted upon the lawmakers who are expected to accomplish great things. One of the incidents of the opening session was the revolt of Congressman Cooper of our district against the rules desired by the republican majority. Mr. Cooper spoke in behalf of himself and was endorsed by leading democrats that the rules in force were not ones which pleased him. He told of his own bitter experience when years ago he failed to please Thomas Reed, then speaker of the House, which time he has been refused recognition on the floor of the house. Mr. Cooper's stand was a surprise to his fellow-workers and was received with applause by the democrats and remarks of sour grapes by his republican co-workers. It failed in its purpose and remains merely an incident of the opening day when such revolts usually occur.

Doubtless we shall have a long session filled with debates upon many momentous questions, but as regards actual performance the outlook is exceedingly doubtful. It is easy to get congress to talk about things. It is very difficult to get it to do anything.

This difficulty is increased at this time by the fact that a presidential election is approaching, and the minds of the lawmakers at Washington will be directed mostly towards this election, and everything said and done in congress will be said and done with respect to its effect upon this election. In other words, we are bound to have a political session.

That is not a very reassuring prospect for businessmen, because debate and agitation incident to a political session in anticipation of a political campaign are bound to be a continuing cause of unsettlement to the markets.

Doubtless there will be much debating of the tariff question. There will be much said concerning the various aspects of the corporation question. In view of the financial upheaval there will inevitably be scores, if not hundreds, of bills introduced relating to currency reform, and this should be one of the most prominent subjects of discussion.

Out of all of the turmoil of the session there are just two things which seem to loom up with some prospect of definite action. Many other things may be done, but these are at least possible. An amendment of the Sherman anti-trust law would apparently receive the backing of a majority of the people of the United States. We are evidently prepared for such a change in the law. Its amendment, while not doing away with the prohibition of monopoly, would give some elasticity in the law so as to permit of a degree of regulated competition.

What is wanted is a change in the Sherman anti-trust law so as to draw a reasonable distinction between good and bad combinations. This thing has been advocated by the President in two or three of his messages. The need of such a thing has been realized by every thinking man in the country, and many important trade organizations have in one way or another advocated an amendment of the act.

The other possible thing is the passage of some simple law providing for elasticity in the bank note system.

BERTHA KALICH

In HARRISON GEEY FISKE'S Production of

MARTA OF THE LOWLANDS

BY ANGEL GUIMERA

Translated by Wallace Gillpatrick and Guido Marburg.

The Chicago "News" of Nov. 26th, said: "Bertha Kalich is one of the greatest actresses of her time. It is a beautiful production."

The Chicago "Examiner" said: "The piece is beautifully staged and costumed."

The Chicago "Tribune" of Nov. 26th, said: "The most powerful acting that has been done here by any actress in years. Not to see her is to miss one of the truly great opportunities that come but rarely in theatre-going experiences." So far as the play itself and the acting is concerned, they both are in the highest degree unusual.

The "Record-Herald" said: "The play is exquisitely staged."

The Chicago "American" said: "Chicago has not in years seen a dramatic interpretation of a power to equal that of Bertha Kalich."

FLEEK'S ANNEX

Owing to the constant increase in our Jewelry Dep't. and the crowded condition of our store, we have decided to close out our Art Department and hereafter continue with Jewelry and Music alone. This conclusion has been reached with no small amount of regret as this department of business has always been one of the most remunerative and pleasant. With the fact before us that we must have more room to properly display our Jewelry Department we have cleared out part of our piano room and for a few weeks will devote it to the Art Goods as an annex to our store. We will place in this room the entire line of Pictures and Frames of all kinds, Vases, Potteries, Statuary, China, Glass, Writing Sets, Smoking Sets, Japanese Goods, Brass Goods, Water Color Paintings, Bric-a-brac and many other articles.

For the purpose of closing these goods out quick we will make a bonifide reduction of 1-4 to 1-2 of Former Prices.

This will be a treat for the public, as you all well know what a high class line we have always carried. These goods will make the finest of Christmas presents and we advise you to call at once and make your selections and goods will be held for you until Christmas if you wish.

Sale Opens Wednesday Morning

"FLEEK'S"

They Wouldn't Believe It Until the Very Last Second and That Was When the Tooth Came Out Painless

A few representative citizens of Janesville have tried Dr. Perkins' Painless Method of extracting teeth. They called and talked it over, but nothing I could say would convince them or remove that doubt and dread, but they had nerve enough to try one. That's what convinced them and will you.

Is Money Tight With You?

If so, you will be pleased to note that your needs in the Dental line may be easily met.

If you select the Right Dentist, Dr. Richards has built up the largest Dental practice in the city during the past 7 years.

By delivering three things.

1ST. PAINLESS DENTISTRY.

Just this A. M. one of the most prominent and influential citizens of Janesville consulted him and had an ulcerated tooth extracted and said in departing:

"Dr. Richards, you did that very nicely and satisfactorily to me."

2NDLY. GOOD, HONEST WORK.

Time tells the tale in all things and time only shows up the durability of his work.

3RDLY. REASONABLE PRICES.

You no doubt have paid $10 each for those gold crowns in your mouth.

Dr. Richards has put out hundreds in this city for just $5 each, and guarantees them to be the same in every respect—quality of gold, thickness of gold, purity, etc., etc.

What's the use of paying twice as much as necessary, when by consulting Dr. Richards you may get the same work at a less price and all done painlessly in the bargain.

ROAD COMMISSIONER MAN OF MANY SIDES

Halvor L. Skavlem is a Student and Poet as Well as a Practical Man of Affairs.

Ornithology which has to do with the habits and history of birds, is a science which deals with the characteristics of the manhood family and archaeology, are subjects on which Halvor L. Skavlem, the newly elected County Commissioner of Highways is an acknowledged authority. He is also versed in geology, in much of the lore of astronomy, in history and political economy, and makes a pastime of such pursuits as the study of genealogy which deals with "family trees." To the knowledge of Indian antiquities, Wisconsin bird study, the sedge and weeds that grow in the lakes of Badgerland, and other similar lines of investigation he has made many valuable contributions, and it is a foregone conclusion that he will not only take up and exhaust the subject of local road-building from the theoretical standpoint but will also make practical application of the knowledge so obtained. Mr. Skavlem is a versatile as old Omar, the poet-maker and astronomer, who, along with his multifarious duties, found time to write some very musical and appealing verses, veiling a philosophy which is still popular in some circles. The Janesville man writes under the pen name of "Carefree" and the following plaintive, little poem, beautifully illuminated with a water color of wood and stream appeared in a recent number of one of the old-fashioned magazines:

MY OLD CANOE

Yes, I'm old and out of fashion, And my hand is shaky too,
Yet with springtime comes a laugh,
For my battered old canoe;
Yet with springtime comes a laugh,
For my battered old canoe.

Old-time memories cluster round it, Days and scenes of long ago;
Shades of friends now long departed
Hover round my old canoe;
Shades of friends now long departed
Hover round my old canoe.

Down life's stream we're slowly drifting, Drifting slowly, I and you;
Time the memory will soon be shifting,
Time the memory will soon be shifting,
Time the memory will soon be shifting,
For our battered old canoe.

Aye, the shadow's growing longer, Yet the sky is bright and blue,
And I see Nirvana yonder
For my battered old canoe;
And I see Nirvana yonder
For my battered old canoe.

KICKERS' KOLUM.

To the Editor: The travel under the Western Ave. arch has become almost impassable. Has the city council of streets where such work is done? If so, why don't they compel the company to provide a watchman at that point to provide for the safety of the traveling public. If a person were thrown out of their rig and killed or injured, who would be responsible for this? The laborers never offer to lend a horse, through for a body no matter how unmanageable it may be.

Sunday morning rigs were allowed to drive under the arch and detained there for about five minutes. A freight train was passing over the bridge above.

The Claron street arch has no light. It is so dark that a nervous horse will not go through that arch.

HANDSOME PIECE OF THREE COLOR WORK

Just Turned Out for Parker Pen Co. by Gazette Printery—Artistic Catalogues for Bassett & Echlin and McRay Bros.

A very handsome piece of three-color printed matter is just being turned out by the Gazette printing department for the Parker Pen Co., a reproduction of one of their full-page magazine advertisements. Other nice specimens of printing are those recently completed for McRay Bros. and a two-color illustrated catalogue supplement, and a price list in pamphlet form with three-color cover for the Bassett & Echlin Co. The facilities of the Gazette both as regards equipment and artistry are high grade and equal to handling any of the more difficult classes of work. Another complete face of new type has lately been added to the assortment of good material, and the customer is assured of securing the best in printing at all times.

INVITATIONS ISSUED FOR THE CEREMONY

Miss Margaret Barker to Marry Roy E. Winner on December Eighteenth.

Invitations were issued this morning for the marriage of Miss Margaret Barker, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George R. Barker of 204 St. Lawrence avenue, to Mr. Roy E. Winner on December 18th. The ceremony will take place at the home of the bride's parents, only relatives and the immediate friends of the bride and groom being present. After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Winner will make their home in one of the Woods Flats on Court street. Miss Barker was born in Janesville and has been prominent in the younger social set for several years. She is an expert horsewoman and enjoys out-of-door exercises. Mr. Winner has been a resident of Janesville for several years, coming here from Iowa with his parents. He has been identified with the Wisconsin Canning Company for some time, being the secretary and treasurer of that corporation.

Buy it in Janesville.*IMPATIENT AT THE DELAY OF OFFICERS

Stepner and Schmitz Say They Can Clear Themselves of Any Crime When They Get Back to Chicago.

Edward Stepner and John Schmitz, the two Chicago youths who were taken from the G. A. M. North-Western passenger train by Officers Appleby, Morrissey and Mason yesterday, found and frothed their cell at the city hall this morning. They had given their word that they would go back to Chicago without requisition papers and appeared to be impatient at the delay of the officers from the metropolitan in coming after them. Some injustice was done in yesterday's account. He is a fair-haired, light complexioned German boy with a rather attractive face, and neither he nor his companion look like hardened criminals. Stepner says that he is a son of M. Stepner, a Chicago tailor; that he was a cow-puncher and soldier in the west for a time—serving at Walla Walla and Seattle; and that he has a brother in the 14th Cavalry in San Francisco. It is his first experience in jail, he claims, and he doesn't enjoy it. According to his story, he and Schmitz went to a performance at the Alhambra theatre Monday night and as the outcome of a discussion of the better prospects for work on the Pacific coast, decided to start for Spokane that night. Schmitz says that the two males found upon his person—one a black one and the other a blue one—were secured and used at a masquerade ball given by the Bill Posters at the Coliseum last Wednesday night. Circumstantial evidence is against the prisoners. The amount stolen was $200 and Stepner had about $15 on his person, which would be a likely balance after the two railroad tickets had been purchased.

TOBACCO SECTIONS MEET THIS MONTH

December Seventeenth is Date of Meeting of the Society of Equity in Janesville.

On December 17th the Tobacco Department of the American Society of Equity will hold their county meeting in the assembly room of the city hall. There will be a morning and an afternoon session at which personal speeches will be delivered of "Tobacco," "The Society Exchange," and "Crops." The speakers will be from Kentucky, Illinois, and C. A. Corbush of Eau Claire, one of the officers of the society. Ten unions of this society are in Rock county of which the Janesville union is one of the best, though this is the first county meeting ever held in Rock County. Meetings of like nature will be held in each county.

The Tobacco Growers' Department of the American Society comprises about eighty per cent of all the tobacco growers in the country and about one-half of those in Wisconsin. The object of these meetings is to get the farmers interested in the movement. President E. H. Holmes of the State Tobacco Growers' Association of the American Society will have charge of the meetings. All farmers are invited.
